THIRST DEVELOPS AS 'RUM BLOCKADE' IS TIGHTENED TODAY

Water Supply Runs Low On Ships and Booze Supply Ashore

FOUR NEW SHIPS REACH THE 'ROW'

Two Small Boats Are Picketing Each Of Liquor Vessels

(Associated Press)
NEW YORK, May 8—A great thirst ashore and at sea seems to have developed from Uncle Sam's blockade of rum row.

On land the supply of liquor is diminishing rapidly, newspaper investigators say, and prices are going up. Meanwhile with water, water everywhere and little or none to drink, some of the rum fleet are presumed to have given up the campaign of attrition and headed for home ports in other lands, either hopefully to replenish their supplies of food and water, or to conclude that the dry navy is too strong for them.

Any retreat that may have taken place from rum row, so far, however, has not been substantial, so far as is indicated by meagre reports from the scene of the passive warfare, from 20 to 40 miles offshore.

In fact, four new crafts, including a large German steamship have arrived on the row.

But the new arrivals had not known of the blockade. Like the vendors already on the row, they were promptly picketed by a unit of the dry navy, which has two small boats watching every rum seller and big cutters in the offing, acting as mother ships.

The assertion continues to be made that the blockade's results have been perfect, with no customer at all getting to or away from the rum fleet.

The New York American, however, today prints an illustrated story of the successful running of the blockade.

Public Service Com'n Takes Matter Under Advisement

The Public Service Commission took the matter of the raise in fire hydrant rates under advisement following the rehearing at Montgomery Thursday before A. G. Patterson, president of the commission.

Attorney W. W. Callahan represented the cities before the commission, presenting the same evidence to the commission that had been heard at the previous hearings. The commission originally declared that the Water company was receiving adequate income for the valuation of the properties in these cities and denied the petition for a raise in rates.

The Water company is asking 8 per cent return upon the valuation of their properties and improvements and declare that the commission has not given full valuation for the capital invested and the expense attached to running the local offices.

It is not known when the commission will hand down their final decision on the matter.

BONDS, STOLEN IN MAIL ROBBERY ON BROADWAY FOUND

Arrest of John Phalan Furnishes Police With Clue

BONDS USED IN LOAN AT BANK

Defendant Refuses To Reveal Source Of Stolen Paper

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 8—Bonds that formed part of the loot of Gerald Chapman, convicted murderer and mail bandit, were recovered today with the arrest of John J. Phalan, charged with grand larceny, for failure to meet interest payments on a loan of $8,500, obtained from the First National bank of Lynbrook, Long Island, on some of the stolen collateral.

Nassau county authorities said the numbers on some of the bonds deposited by Phalan corresponded with those on the bonds stolen in the sensational lower Broadway mail truck robbery, in which Chapman and two pals were charged with having escaped with $2,400,000 worth of loot.

Other bonds were believed to have been taken in a raid of the Wilton Trust company, at Wilton, Maine, in 1923. This robbery also was laid at the door of Chapman and his associates.

Phalan, who is 37 years old, was arrested in a cafe early today by local and Nassau county police.

Phalan was arrested on complaint of Alexander Petrovich, a real estate dealer, of Long Island, who negotiated the deal whereby the bonds were used as collateral.

He said that Phalan, a year ago, had purchased several lots from him, producing $10,300 worth of bonds, upon which Petrovich gave him note to the Lynbrook bank, returning his customer title to the lots and $8,500 in cash.

Phalan insisted, Petrovich said, that none of the bond coupons be chipped, saying he would pay the interest through a friend. This occurred for a time, but the friend recently died and the interest payment was defaulted. This resulted in an investigation of the bonds by bank officials, who made inquiries of the company which had issued them.

They learned that five $1,000 bonds in the lot were part of the mail truck robbery, for which Chapman and his buddy, Dutch Anderson were convicted and sentenced to 25 year terms in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta. Others were found to be the property of the Wilton bank, the robbery of which Chapman is supposed to have been concerned with, although he never was brought to trial for the crime.

Phalan, police say, refused to make any statement as to how he came into possession of the bonds. Only a few hundred dollars worth of the lot taken in the mail robbery ever were recovered, police said.

Certain phases of the robbery still remained unsolved when Chapman was tried and convicted in Hartford, Conn., on a charge of having murdered a New Britain, Conn., policeman as the aftermath of a frustrated department store robbery.

Chapman is under sentence to hang next month, but he has appealed.

Port Development Progressive Move

(Associated Press)

MOBILE, Ala., May 8—Port development at Mobile under the direction of the State Docks board is one of the most progressive movements undertaken at any port in the country. Admiral Leigh C. Palmer declared here on a recent visit. He made this statement after he had inspected the site of the new docks and looked over plans for the new terminals.

Admiral Palmer was in the city for several hours in connection with a tour of inspection of southern ports. He viewed the harbor from the customs boat as well as inspected the office of the shipping board here, taking a ride also about the city.

In speaking on the plan for developing the port of Mobile, Admiral Palmer declared that the project here has been planned with a view of taking care of business 50 years from now. Many ports have made the mistake of planning for only immediate needs he declared, only to find that expansion at a later time was very expensive.

"You have not thought in terms of five or ten years but in terms of fifteen years or more," he told local men.

"Mobile is a wonderful city of homes. Any city based on that has a wonderful future. You people know you are going to stay here and not just remain until you have made your pile. You have the southwest behind you, which will insure the success of your city."

Admiral Palmer stated that there had been great improvement in shipping at Mobile, adding that the merchant marine is an international proposition and must be considered so, if it is to compete with world shipping.

"We are in world competition," said the admiral. "We must meet that competition on its own ground. We must economize in the operation of the fleet, much more than in the operation of our commercial businesses. Foreigners have been competing for many years and that without the COLUMBIA, S. C., May 8—Henry I. McCaw, clerk of the supreme court of South Carolina, is dead and Joseph J. Lucas, statehouse policeman is being held by county authorities as a result of a pistol duel between the two men in the capitol building here early today.

McCaw was shot through the heart and death was instantaneous, physicians said. Lucas was uninjured. Lucas declared that he fired in self defense. He stated that while making his rounds, he encountered McCaw under the south portico of the statehouse, and called to him.

McCaw answered with an oath, he said, upbraiding him for locking the gate leading to the building. At the same time, the policeman told officers. McCaw drew a pistol and began firing. Lucas said that he returned the fire and did "not know how many shots he fired."

McCaw was about 50 years of age and unmarried. Lucas has been employed at the statehouse for a number of years.

Thinks Fortifications of Pacific Should Be Strengthened

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 8—Chairman Butler, of the house naval committee, said today he would urge legislation at the next session to congress to make the Hawaiian Islands "the strongest military outpost in the world."

Members of the house naval committee, he said, would leave early in June for the islands to obtain first hand information on what would be required to accomplish this purpose.

As chairman of the naval committee, Mr. Butler has asked Secretary Wilbur, in writing to arrange for the trip which the chairman said would be an "entirely official one."

Mr. Butler revealed his intention in reply to a question asked by the Associated Press, as to whether he desired to make any statement regarding the recent army and navy maneuvers at Hawaii. The naval committee, he added, would be accompanied on its trip by high naval officials and a thorough survey made of the needs of the islands with particular reference to Pearl Harbor.

Mr. Butler declared that for some time he had thought that Hawaii should be more thoroughly fortified.

"I am still of that opinion," he said. "The proposal to fortify the islands does not mean I am opposed to the world court or disarmament. I hope these things may be brought about, but I am beginning to doubt whether other nations are in earnest about disarmament. I hope I am wrong."

WOULD BRIGHTEN UP LONDON WITH WOMEN'S GAY CLOTHES

LONDON—London skirts, although they have not shrunk as rapidly as in Paris, are much shorter this spring, and furthermore shoes are worn in all the colors of the rainbow, all this being part of a campaign of modists, care proprietors and shop owners for a "brighter London." The rainbow effect for shoes is not to be confined to the ball room, but is designed for street wear, and especially for afternoon teas and other social events before nightfall sets in.

The rainbow coloring is brought about by the use of a highly glossed surface on patent leather, a kind of imitation of a beetle's wing. The surface is iridescent and filled with touches of the greens, blues and suggestions of pink. The beetle wing shoe is designed to out the white buckskin slipper for the summer, but the modistes are not so sure about its success because of the unattractiveness of patent leather during hot

LONDON'S GREAT DUNGEONS THROWN OPEN TO PUBLIC

LONDON—Four additional towers of the famous Tower of London have been opened for the first time for the convenience of the thousands of sight-seers from all parts of the world who visit this historic place weekly. The great oaken doors of these towers, known as the Byward, Salt, Martin and Broad Arrow were found to be in a wonderful state of preservation, and the great dungeons where enemy spies were lodged during the last war are now open to public inspection for the first time in history.

It was near the Martin Tower that some of the spies were shot, among them Carl Hans Lody, a German who, posing as an American, was captured in the summer of 1914, and who was the first person to be executed in these precincts for nearly 100 years. In past centuries hundreds of traitors and prisoners of state were confined in the towers, and many of them whiled away the weary days by carving pictures and inscriptions on the walls and these are still visible today.

Byward Tower, being the main entrance to the inner ward, must have its gates carefully locked every night and the chief warden, in his scarlet coat and flat hat, with an escort from the military guard, himself performs that duty.

As far as is known positively the Tower of London which today covers 12 acres dates from the time of William the Conqueror, who began the White tower somewhere about 1078, and completed it about 20 years afterward. At first it was a palace, but later was used as a prison.

Catarrh Shatters Dream of Happiness For Many Brides

Well-Known Authority Predicts That Within a Few Years After Universal Use of St. Joseph's G. F. P. Women Will No Longer Have to Go as If Under a Cloud.

Every woman looks forward to the time when she shall become a happy bride—the greatest ambition of her life. And when her wedding day comes, she is radiant with life and love, glowing with energy and health and filled with rosy dreams of the future.

But what a difference a few years make. Dreadful changes take place; gone are the dreams of yesterday; tired lines are etched in her face; perhaps her health is impaired. Cares and responsibilities have weighed too heavily on her frail shoulders. So-called "female troubles" have made her weak, irritable or nervous.

This state of affairs can be traced to a condition in the system of women which has been proven to be catarrh of the generative organs, and this malady never corrects itself. Unless stamped out, it spreads to other parts of the body through the inflammation of the mucous membrane, causing that awful whimsical and morbid feeling of depression which makes its victims feel like life is hardly worth living for them.

The success of St. Joseph's G. F. P. has established beyond question the correctness of the theory that catarrh of the generative organs is the cause of nine out of ten cases of so-called "female disorders."

"At the present amazing rate, women are using St. Joseph's G. F. P. I know I am safe in predicting that within a few years suffering and sickness from so-called disorders of women will be comparatively unknown among the women and girls of this country," says the representative of the discovery of this wonderful medicine.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Incapacitated mentally, by shock, as a result of experiences during the World War, Renshaw makes a proposition to a David Campbell, wealthy, elderly man of leisure, that for a year he assume responsibility for him (Renshaw)—practically "buy" him. Doctor Stanley, life-long friend of Campbell's, indorses the proposition, which Campbell, with some natural misgivings, accepts. The arrangement is that the young man becomes an inmate of the Campbell household, with the nominal duty of secretary. Renshaw meets Verity, Campbell's granddaughter, and gets the impression that she does not like him. Jenks, the butler, Renshaw also feels, is distinctly hostile.

CHAPTER II.—At dinner, a guest, referred to as Madame Hvoeslef, is not present. Renshaw has a feeling that the servants are spying on him. Jenks warns him that there are "queer things" going on in the house. That night he is disturbed by the appearance on the wall of his room of a small blue circle of light. Mysteriously, in the corridor outside his door, he sees a shadowy figure. He tries to investigate, but he discovers nothing unusual.

CHAPTER III.—Campbell tells Renshaw that the household is in some respects "unusual," but makes light of his story of the mysterious blue circle. Renshaw meets Madame Hvoeslef, a foreigner, with an air of mystery.

CHAPTER IV.—Madame Hvoeslef asks Renshaw to go to New York, on a short journey, on a mission for her next day. During the night the blue circle again appears and the mysterious noises are resumed. Arising to investigate, Renshaw discovers he is locked in. He hears the sound of a heavy body dragging itself up to the transom over the door. Then a hand appears, apparently seeking to open the transom. Unsuccessful, the hand vanishes, and Renshaw hears the sound of a heavy body crawling away.

CHAPTER V.—Remembering Jenks' warning, Renshaw tells the butler of the mysterious noises, but gets no satisfaction. Madame Hvoeslef gives him a handbook, declaring its contents are priceless, which he is to deliver to a Mr. Atkins in New York. After dressing, Renshaw again finds his door locked, but it is promptly opened by Jenks. Renshaw delivers the bag, Hart, Campbell's chauffeur, who drove him to town, tells him Verity and Madame Hvoeslef are at the Waldorf. Remembering his locked door that morning, Renshaw is vaguely uneasy about the handbook and calls up Atkins. He learns that the bag he delivered contained only blank paper.

CHAPTER VI.—Meeting the ladies at the Waldorf, Renshaw learns that Madame Hvoeslef's property is safe, the bag he delivered being a duplicate for which no explanation can be made. Hart gets permission to stay in town that night, producing a substitute chauffeur. On the way home Renshaw sends back the substitute, taking the wheel himself.

CHAPTER VII.—Despite her indifference Renshaw feels himself becoming deeply interested in Verity. During the night he is awakened by the girl, who tells him her grandfather has had an accident and is unconscious. They get the old man to bed. Restored to consciousness he with difficulty conveys to Renshaw a message, "Watch! Take charge."

CHAPTER VIII.—Verity is annoyed at her grandfather placing Renshaw in charge, but they reach an amicable understanding. Verity being impressed by Renshaw's masterful handling of the situation.

you shouldn't know. Campbell himself would have told you no doubt, in a day or two. I suppose he had promised Madame Hvoeslef—that isn't her name, by the way—to say nothing until the material was safe with the Trust company. She's the mystery-maker, you know; and she has coaxed mystery from the moment she entered the house.

"Of course you have. Who could help noticing it? Well, what it all means is simply this: Madame Hvoeslef, as she chooses to call herself just now, is a very great personage in her native land, and her husband was a very great man there. He spent the last years of his life writing his memoirs. Those memoirs are very intimate and personal. They concern history and thrones and wearers of crowns. And the author's august master, shaking on his own tottering throne, didn't want them published. When the author died, the widow was offered a fortune for the manuscript. She refused the fortune, knowing it meant that the manuscript would be destroyed, and that her husband's greatest wish was to have it published. Then efforts were made to steal it—rather desperate efforts, from all I've heard. To save the material she fled with it to this country, in disguise and under an assumed name."

"Humph!" observed Renshaw without enthusiasm.

"She was traced to New York by agents of the august master," Stanley went on placidly. "According to her story and evident conviction, their orders were to get that manuscript and all those invaluable historic letters and documents at any cost. Her very life was in danger. In fact, two attempts were made on it in Europe. She knew Verity Campbell, so when she arrived Verity went to New York and brought her and her grandchild and the nurse back here in the dead of night."

"Since then, Madame Hvoeslef claims several queer-looking foreigners have been lurking around Tawno Ker. All the men servants have been warned and put on guard against trouble. When Madame Hvoeslef continued to see and hear things outside the house every night—faces at the windows and figures in the trees, and all that stuff—the strain on the family nerves became too great. I persuaded Campbell to get her to send the material to the Trust company, and we chose you for the job because no one would think you would be our choice."

No one would think he would be their choice! Renshaw took this in silence and digested it, but it did not disturb him.

"A big publishing firm is buying the world rights to the stuff for fifty thousand dollars," Stanley went on. "The contract is to be signed in a few days. It's a mighty good thing for the charming Madame Hvoeslef, since it's all she has left. She belonged to the reigning family, and her uprising countrymen have recently confiscated her estates. She can go to France or Switzerland now, and live on the income of her fifty thousand."

They had reached the store gateway, where the limousine was waiting. The old doctor held out his hand.

"But," Renshaw objected, as he took it, "all this being so, it doesn't explain in the least the things I've noticed."

"What have you noticed?" Stanley asked the question over his shoulder, with a foot on the running-board of the car. It was not a moment for confidences, even if Renshaw had intended to make them. However, he would see what else he could draw out.

"Oh, odd noises and lights, and that sort of thing," he said carelessly. "But inside the house—not outside. And I understood from Mr. Campbell that everything inside the house was all right."

Stanley entered the car and shrugged himself into the big fur-lined overcoat that lay waiting for him on the back seat.

"The servants," he explained, "told you they were on the watch. They didn't know what for, of course. They were just ordered to keep their eyes open and their mouths shut. But you can imagine how skillful they'd be in pussy-footing around—every man fancying himself an amateur detective. Probably they've been trying to arrest one another," he ended, with a chuckle.

Renshaw had one more question: "Is that all you know—and all that you and Mr. Campbell meant by what you said?"

"Absolutely not. It's enough, too. You don't find a lost princess guarding historic memoirs every day. Where's your imagination? Madame Hvoeslef is a very great lady, and that baby I hear you've fallen in love with has royal blood in her veins. No one else took the thing as hard as Madame Hvoeslef did, of course," he went on more thoughtfully, "but no one can blame her for being melodramatic. She has lost her country, her family, her fortune, and all but lost her life over those memoirs. They are vital to her, whatever they may seem to the rest of us. Now I'm off. The nurse will telephone me twice a day, and Morris has a lot of sense. Good-by."

Renshaw walked slowly back to the house and, leaving his coat and hat in the hall closet, entered the study and shut and locked the door. He wanted to be alone and to think. He sat down in a chair before the fire, and mentally held Stanley's story up to inspection. He believed the old man had told him all he knew. He believed that what he had told him true. He also knew, with absolute

12 Years Ago From The Daily of TODAY May 8, 1913.

J. H. Calvin and E. L. Rainey, president and secretary, respectively, of Post H. T. P. A., left on the noon train for Birmingham to attend the state convention.

The initial performance of the Apollo Glee Club was enjoyed at the Masonic Theatre last evening. T. Gilbert Crane was elected president of the musical organization.

Captain T. R. (Dick) Ryan leaves tomorrow for a visit to relatives in Waco, Texas.

Miss Irene Arantz was hostess to the Priscilla club on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. W. A. Curry entertained the Joe Wheeler chapter of the U. D. C. on Thursday afternoon.

Carlisle Blackwell visited his brother, Prentiss Blackwell in Sheffield this week.

With the bridge a certainty and the highway condition improving all the time, the summer looks very good to the people of Albany-Decatur and the surrounding section.

Hindenberg is already facing trouble. As has been the case in every move of the former advocate of might everything connected with him is looked upon with suspicion. We do not care to take sides with the socialistic party, but we cannot purge our minds of the calibre of the newly elected president.

Officials of our state are criticised and thwarted in the attempts that they make for what they believe the betterment of conditions in the state. We must not lose sight of the fact that these officials were placed in office through the vote of the majority of the people and that their pledges cannot be carried out unless they have the support of the full people.

When the full story of the tragedy of the Vermont hills is told, we wonder if parental lack of care didn't have something to do with eleven year old Lucille Chatterton leaving home with Earl Woodward. Imagine the playing up of the story as a love affair between an eleven year old child and a twenty-six year old man. Sounds absurd.

Some fellow comes along and shouts prison reform and tells of the horrible treatment that convicts are forced to undergo. We do not advocate brutality in prisons, but we do believe that the convicts would have been better off had they thought of the terrors of prison life before they committed criminal acts upon their fellowmen.

National Music Week should be observed over the entire nation as one of the greatest events in the history of the country. Soldiers go to war with the strains of martial airs ringing in their ears; we praise our God with hymns of peace and reverence, college teams face the test of strength and mind with the anthems of their universities floating over the field from the throats of their classmates. Before almost anything is put across there must be music to stir the people. Music can be termed as one of the noblest arts that has been given to mankind.

CARMICHAEL DENIES THAT HE INTENDS TO QUIT THE RACE FOR GOVERNOR

Archie H. Carmichael, of Tusculum, is quoted by the Tri-Cities' newspapers as emphatically denying the reports, originating in Birmingham, to the effect that he would quit the race to win and has no intention of getting out of the campaign.

No one should be in better position to know Mr. Carmichael's intentions than Mr. Carmichael, himself. Therefore there is little left to do, but to accept his statement at its face value. It must be remembered also that The Birmingham Age-Herald which published the rumor Tuesday morning, accredited it to one of the Teasley leaders.

Mr. Patterson has not formally announced his candidacy, but many of his friends express the belief that he will be in the running. If he finally decides to enter the race, it will complicate matters considerably, for Andrew Patterson will be a formidable candidate, make no mistake about that. It is regrettable that with two such strong men in North Alabama spoken of in connection with the governor's office, that they should be candidates in the same election, but irrespective of Mr. Carmichael's ultimate decision, if Mr. Patterson runs, he will be difficult for any of the candidates to defeat.

The local man twice has been given flattering majorities by the people of Alabama and his record, as chairman of the public service commission has been such that he has strengthened his position in the affection of the people of his state.

Takes a whole day to go from one end of the state of Alabama to the other on the speediest train of the Louisville & Nashville, this by the most direct route. Do you think a substantial bond issue for the building of highways is too much?

NO CAUSE FOR WORRY OVER DELAY IN SELLING OF BRIDGE BONDS

Many people have naturally been interested in the sale of the bridge bonds, recently voted in these cities as an aid to the highway department in the construction of a bridge at this point; many have wondered why little has been said during the past month regarding the disposal of the bond issue and consequently have feared that some hitch in affairs was holding up the bridge leaders.

That is not the case. The bridge leaders have moved steadily forward and like the highway commission, are ready to go ahead with the program that calls for construction of the bridge to be begun by the middle of the summer. There is no cause to worry over the matter. Every detail has been worked out smoothly and satisfactorily and the wish of the people of this section will be carried out on the program that was presented to them when they were asked to vote for the bond issue.

ON ENCOURAGEMENT OF AMATEUR ATHLETICS

About the greatest aid in the building of the youth for the battle of tomorrow, nearly the best method in keeping in touch with his church and with his God, is in encouraging the youth in the participation of amateur athletics. Cleanliness is next to Godliness, but looking at the matter from the material standpoint, physical development is needed to furnish mental food. An athlete may be tired out after an afternoon of physical exertion and turn into bed early at night too tired to lend his mentality an opportunity in study. The next morning, however, he will arise feeling fit for the battles of the day, his mind clear, his body vigorous. The athlete does not turn to vice, in the first place, if he is in school there are training rules that prevent him from attempting to throw his life away; coaches see to it that their men are in top physical shape all the time. If they refuse to accept the rules other men are forced under, they are dismissed from the squad and from the good graces of their fellow-students at once. In civil life there may not be any training rules to conform to, the athlete is not paid to go on the field and give the best that he has. The amateur has his self-respect and public opinion to keep him within bounds and to keep himself in trim at all times.

Recently the city league season was opened in Albany-Decatur; there were approximately thirty baseball players present and around fifteen people to see the game. Mind you, this game was the opening of the local season; there is no professional circuit being contemplated. Fifteen people to see the opening of the local season. Fifteen people to encourage the boys, who are to be the men of tomorrow, the officials of the cities within a few years, the leaders in every phase of city life, were at the game. Is that encouragement to boys who are trying to keep themselves in the best condition of life and give the people good clean sport at the same time? Turn the matter over in your mind and see what an influence you can throw around the young men of your communities, the kind of influence that they want and enjoy.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT COMMERCE URGES CARE AGAINST EVER PRESENT FIRES

Asserting that $1,500,000 a day is going to waste through the carelessness in this nation, resulting in fire losses over the nation, the Department of Commerce is attempting to bring this startling fact before the people of the United States in an effort to call forth the care that is not prevalent in the souls of most Americans.

The comment from the department wishes to know what would happen if Secretary Mellon would start each day's work by dumping into the Atlantic a load of gold pieces valued at $1,500,000? We might suggest that Americans would become a nation of deep sea divers, but the matter is one that should be looked upon in all seriousness.

The department has this to say of the daily loss in this country:

"What would happen if Secretary Mellon were to begin each day's work by dumping into the blue depths of the Atlantic a load of gold pieces worth $1,500,000?"

"This question was put to the National Fire Waste Council, at its last meeting at the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, by W. E. Mallalieu, general manager of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, to indicate the lethargic American attitude toward fire destruction.

"America, it appears, likes to do things in a big way. It burns up its resources on the same scale as it builds skyscrapers.

"At the present time," says Mr. Mallalieu, "it is burning up its material assets at the rate of well over half a billion dollars a year. In 1923 the figures were more than $535,372,000, the highest peak of destruction touched thus far, and about $331,000,000 in excess of the total of ten years ago. Co-incidental with this annihilation of property occur fatalities estimated at 15,000 annually, besides injuries to 17,000 persons.

"This represents in dollars alone, nearly $1,500,000 a day reduced to ashes—an economic drain that cannot be permitted to continue without eventual disaster. We cannot fiddle along year after year smiling sadly at the crackling discord of the flames without paying for the music, even though only some of us recognize the menace of the tune. We all bear the burden in one form or another—it is unescapable."

Although the department of commerce is applying this statement to the nation, there is a local application in every hamlet and city in the country. Fire losses over this country are to a great extent caused by rank carelessness and disregard for property once the property is our own. We may carry a great deal of insurance, on the office building or the home, but we never carry the full value; we always have to count the inconvenience and the discomforts. All this can be avoided in most cases with the use of ordinary care.

Recently a newcomer to Albany-Decatur was heard to declare that he thought a celebration was in progress at hearing what he thought was a whistle blowing. On that particular day he declared that the fire siren was heard on a number of occasions. He declared that he was astonished when he later found that it was a fire siren.

Look on the boards at the fire halls of these cities and notice the number of fires that are charged to carelessness. The losses may be only small, but when added together form the sum of $1,500,000 spent each day in this country through the fire waste alone. It is worth the time and thought and the little extra cost to prepare against fire loss with the proper amount of precaution that should be taken. Take this gigantic loss into consideration, a part of it may be your own on tomorrow's list.

CONSTIPATION means DISEASE

These young rascals when they are well, are the greatest institutions on earth. But when that insidious lurking monster—constipation—ties up their bowels, then the world is dark. Coated tongue, loss of appetite, wakefulness, bad breath, pimples, weakness, dull mind are only a few indications that you are going to have a mighty sick boy if you do not see that his clogged bowels are opened up at once.

Dr. Caldwell's SYRUP PEPSIN

AMUSEMENTS

It took six states to furnish the background for "Sundown" First National's epic of the cattle country, now showing at the Princess theater.

The early sequences taken in New York showing the skyline the elevated, the tenement district—the latter contrasting with the great silent wastes of the Southwest where the main narrative unfolds.

The First National company, which produced "Sundown" after leaving Hollywood, traveled by train and by horse, through California, Arizona, Utah, New Mexico and Texas, even crossing the border into Mexico several times. The bulk of the action was laid in the vast deserts of these two states and required the company to spend many long months, living in tents, in the heart of the unbaked plains.

The story of "Sundown" tells of the passing of the Old West. A group of cattlemen gather and discuss the encroachment of homesteaders who have been allotted quarter sections of land by the government. These "nesters" as the cattlemen call them, are gradually crowding them out, leaving them little or no room for grazing their immense herds. A committee confers with Theodore Roosevelt president at that time, but is informed that nothing can stop the onrush of civilization.

Returning to their homes the cattlemen decide that they must seek new pastures, and with their vast herds and make the last and greatest drive in the history of the world. Thousands of cattle trek across the plains and deserts of the northern continent, finally crossing the Mexican border and settling there.

BRITONS GROWING SHORTER ACCORDING TO SCIENTIST

LONDON.—Europeans of the present day have smaller brains than formerly, according to Sir Arthur Keith, conservator of the Royal College of Surgeons' Museum, and England's best known anthropologist.

Referring to the height of man, the speaker said it was evident that the mean height of the modern English-

TOURIST TRAVEL HEADED TOWARD AMERICAN SHORES
GOTHENBURG.—More Swedish tourists for the United States and an increasing number of emigrants for Canada is the effect of the American immigration law on Swedish westward travel, as it pours through this gateway to the Atlantic.

While the normal Swedish overflow population is about 20,000 a year, the number admitted as immigrants in the United States is limited for 1925 to 9,561. In Canada the young farmers of the north continue to be welcome, and the Canadian governmental authorities have promised co-operation, in this distribution.

At the same time there are many

Swedes who wish to visit the United States as tourists, and to meet this demand Swedish travel interests now plan to organize regular conducted tours through the eastern and middle western states, with all expenses covered in one lump sum.

As there is no restriction on the number of round trip tourists, this class of travelers is expected to fill up the space usually reserved for emigrants.

Sunday Schools Deal Blow To Decatur In Second Game Of City Series; Score 19-5

The Consolidated Sunday school team was all set Thursday afternoon, after a long winters sleep, for a battling spree and that is exactly what happened. The Sunday school clubbers fell on the offerings of the Decatur hurlers with a characteristic vim and coupled with shaky support from the patched up Decatur lineup the Sunday school folks galloped around the bases in right lively fashion.

The Sunday schools were idle only in the sixth and eighth innings. At all other times they were busy amassing runs against the Decatur team. Callahan was hit freely all through the contest.

Sewell pitched steadily for the Sunday schools and was never in danger of defeat as his team piled up a commanding lead that would have taken a miracle to overcome.

The score by innings:

Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock the Alabama Power company meets the Ralston Independent team of the Louisville and Nashville shops. The Ralston outfit is declared to be strong with some of the best talent in the shops gathered together in a fighting combination. The game will be called promptly at 3:30 o'clock at Malone Park. Batteries have not been announced.

The Daily completely swamped the Demolays in bowling last night at the Y. M. C. A. handing them that famous golden goose egg.

Walker of the Daily copped the only honor for the night in high single score of 162 pins. The Daily team raised its tournament average by 18 pins, while the Demolays lowered theirs by 11 pins.

Teams bowling tonight will be the Decoras vs the Railroaders. There is no handicap between them.

HIKE SATURDAY

There will be a hike Saturday for the young boys of Albany-Decatur. Arrow Himes, Boys' Work Secretary of the local Y. M. C. A. will be in charge of the hike. In all likelihood the boys will again go to Blue Springs or the day. Fishing and swimming is excellent there.

Boys are all instructed to report to the Y. M. C. A. at 8:00 o'clock Saturday morning where they will register for the hike. Each boy should bring his own lunch. Any and all boys are invited to make the trip on foot.

For want of a nail the shoe was lost;
For want of a shoe the horse was lost;
For want of a horse the rider was lost;
And all for the want of a horse shoe nail.

On May 11th The Pan-American

Becomes An All-Pullman Train—No Day Coaches

Because of the very heavy patronage given "The Pan-American" by through or long distance travelers, it has been found necessary to provide further Pullman accommodations and to eliminate the day coaches (except between Memphis and Bowling Green.) With this change, the train will be equipped with brand-new cars, specially built for it, providing the last word in travel comfort. In the panels on the left are shown some of the luxuries which will be provided.

One of America's Finest Trains

"The Pan-American" represents perfection in traveling convenience, between Cincinnati, Louisville and New Orleans. Club car with buffet, writing desk and library table, valet service, and hot and cold showers for men. A specially designed parlor-observation car offers similar accommodations to the ladies—lounging room, maid service, and showering clear hearing without disturbance to other passengers. Evening radio concert will be a feature; head sets in excellence of L. & N. dining-car service.
